- @UK Data Centre Move
- Launch of New SG Template
- Featured Trader — Credit Complaints Limited
- Planned downtime announcement

@UK PLC now live in London Data Centre

We completed a successful migration of all our services to London a day ahead of schedule, since we allowed 3 opportunities for the switch over between data centres during the last bank holiday weekend, and completed a successful switch over at the first opportunity

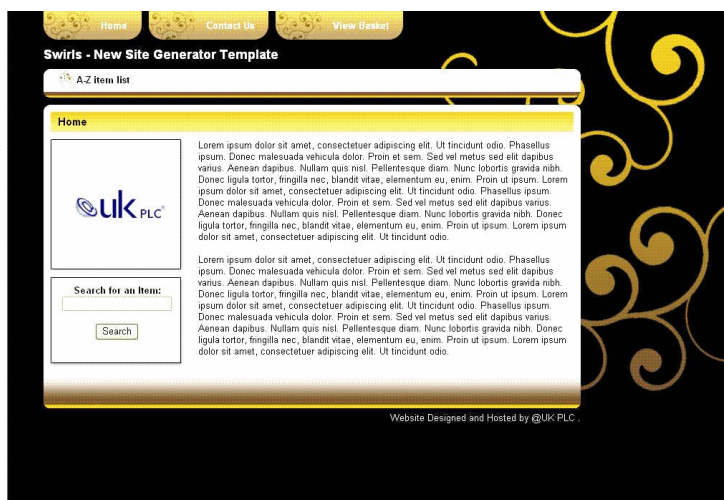

Our websites were up through out the move, however we had to take the shopping basket and check out down for around 5 minutes, whilst the databases switched over. Some customers connected to the Aldermaston servers at the time of the switch over may have experienced a longer outage, and we connected our Aldermaston web servers to the London Data Centre to resolve the issue.

We are sorry about the problems experienced by our email and certain web customers. As far as we are aware all issues are now resolved, and we ask all customers to contact us if they have any issues with any of our systems.

Internet Authentication begins 1st July 2007

What is Internet Authentication?

Internet Authentication is an additional security process which is designed to protect merchants from fraudulent transactions. This process is usually referred to as 'Internet Authentication'.

From 1st July 2007, Maestro card payments online will be declined unless they have been passed through the Internet authentication process.

Planned downtime announcement

On Sunday 1st of July between 7:00am and 9:00am @UK PLC will be migrating databases between clusters as we reduce the processing power of our London Database cluster. Currently we have 96 virtual processors in our London Database cluster and we are intending to reduce this to 24 virtual processors. There will be around 1 minute's downtime for each switch over, and we expect to still be running at less than 10% of the reduced capacity after the reduction.

The benefit of the reduction is that we will be able to measure processor usage more accurately and predict when we are likely to need additional power. It also means that we can quickly provide additional resources to as we require them and get advance warning as we turn on additional resources of the likely timescale to the next major upgrade.
